
January 6th, 2015

After being in the real estate business for over 25 years and building and renovating 6 homes I was fortunate to have one of the most pleasurable and rewarding building experiences you can imagine. Forst Construction with Mike and Amy leading the team provided my wife and I with a smooth, mainly stress free, on time and on budget beautiful new house.

Michael is a third generation builder and he has the building business ingrained and works to find the most up to date practices and materials. He has energy, drive and ambition and takes real pride in his work and in building a home that you will be comfortable in for years to come. He did my project in 10 months from start to finish-it would have been quicker but I held him up with some of my choices. He was on budget except for the extras that I put in and with those he always gave me a written work order to approve before he did the work thereby eliminating those surprises.

I just need to mention some of the highlights starting with staying in touch. Imagine having a builder that from the beginning to the present always took or returned my calls within 15 minutes. A builder that not only gets it done but one that gets it done correctly, even if he needs to have a particular tradesman redo their work.

The quality is excellent, as I write this on a cold winter day I am sitting in my home next to a door and in front of 3 large windows and not feeling any breeze from the 18 mph winds coming in over the bay. I have been in my house for 3 months now and have had several occasions to get some work tweaked. Although he has been fully paid he continues to give me the time and service when I need.

The right builder is essential to successful project. Once you are in the process you need someone that knows his business, has a good team assembled, one that takes pride in his work, and perhaps most importantly is trustworthy. Michael Forst has these qualities and more. I wholeheartedly recommend that you speak with him if you are considering building.

There is a lot more that I can say and if you want to hear more of my experience feel free to call or email me.

Sincerely,
Michael DeSario

516.982.1311

Michael.desario@corcoran.com