To Whom It May Concern:

My wife and I purchased a home built and completed in late 2013 by Michael and Amy Forst's company Forst Construction; Prior to deciding on our current home, we had looked at approximately 40 properties throughout the East Hampton area during the summer of 2013; We quickly came to learn that the properties we found ourselves most interested in, and specifically stood out to us for their build quality and thoughtful/unique charm, were all built by Forst Construction.

Having lived in a "Forst" property over a year now, I can say that we have a greater appreciation for Michael and Amy's character (as well as everyone they choose to work with). This is something that is clear and on the surface to anyone looking at a "Forst Home," and may appear as simply thoughtful execution and in the art of "home building," and we've found it is deeper rooted and lies within the experience and character of the people you are purchasing your home from. As this is something that no one can really template, it makes the home further stand out in a land of cookie-cutter homes.

The result outside of a beautiful home, is that any work done associated to the house by Forst (whether it by accident or intent) the projects/work requested is handled in the same fashion the house was built. Put otherwise, any issues that have come up have been fixed immediately/ thoroughly, and any projects we have executed with Forst have been executed in alignment to the core of the home itself.

Best Regards,
